

What We Do

The Lifeplus Foundation is a US registered 501(c)(3) charitable organization committed to helping people create better lives for themselves. We help communities gain access to clean water, food security, and education and believe every person deserves the dignity that comes from having these fundamental needs.

We're passionate about helping to break the cycle of poverty by providing opportunities needed for people to create full, productive lives...

How We Do it

The Lifeplus Foundation carefully selects on-ground partners who have long term relationships and commitments to the people they serve. Whenever possible, we expect the work we fund to be carried out by indigenous staff guided by local leadership.

Our projects are aimed at helping people help themselves through hands-on training and leadership development.

We're not just about funding new projects, we're also taking care of the ones already built. This is how we ensure that our projects continue to serve communities long after they are completed. We monitor them regularly by visiting them in person and by staying in close communication with our local partners.
